

Denis Andreev

Central Research Telecommunication Institute (ZNIIS, Russia)

Born on 28 July 1977 in Moscow (Russia). Denis Andreev was graduated from the Moscow Power Engineering Institute (MPEI) in 2000.

From 2000 to present time he is employed with ZNIIS. He begun as a engineer and took part in different science-research works for National Telecom players and in preparation different normative documents for Regulator.

In 2002 he was the head of research lab and was responsible for realizing the network construction projects for service providers and corporative sector.

In 2005 he was the head of department and was responsible for the developing own technical solutions for NGN, creation telecom equipment and new technology research.

From 2007 to present time he is the Director of Technopark and responsible for control testing area of ZNIIS, preparation methodology of testing, providing testing event on national and international layers.

From 2001 to present time he take part in ITU-T activities, regarding signaling and testing. As a Rapporteur of ITU-T Q.8/11 he was one of authors of four ITU-T Recs. Regarding testing Q.3900, Q.3901, Q.3902, Q.3903.

From March 2008 to present time he coordinates the activity of joint ITU-D/ZNIIS project for creation International Telecommunication Testing Center (ITTC).

He published a lot of articles in national magazines regarding NGN implementation, NGN services and NGN testing.