

Most Internet service providers practice keeping in Nairobi. They are not interconnected and data has to go via Europe/America and then back. This depletes the scarce international bandwidth. My proposal is to establish an Internet exchange point in Kenya to reduce this and save on the international bandwidth.

---