

My business proposal is to open an Internet café in the university of Sierra Leone where students will be able to access information, do their assignments and their academic projects.

Secondly, to set up a radio station where the voices of youths could be heard. The radio station would be geared towards empowering the youths and make them more meaningful in society. I believe the future is in the hands of the youths.

My country lacks experts in computer engineering. A lot of computers get faulty and are hardly replaced thus accessing and dispensing information becomes slow.

Service providers are poor and it will be a big advantage if more sophisticated ones are provided.
