Company Profile

Omniacom is a high-tech company that is involved in the development, design and manufacturing of telecommunications access network systems. Our products include a Wireless Local Loop (WLL) system that is based on the Digital Enhanced Cordless Telecommunication (DECT) standard. It is a very efficient and robust system that can be used by public and private telecom operators to provide quick, cost effective and easy wireless access to telecom networks. We also provide a wide range of broadband Internet access products based on IEEE 802.11 standards for indoor and outdoor use. We have expertise in network design, engineering and deployment.
