

USTTI

UNITED STATES TELECOMMUNICATIONS TRAINING INSTITUTE

Global Growth through Communications Sharing

USTTI Background

- The USTTI is a 34 year non-profit, government and industry joint venture that was launched at the 1982 ITU Plenipotentiary Conference in Nairobi, to annually provide tuition-free training courses for women and men who design, regulate and oversee the communications infrastructures of the developing world

USTTI Background

- USTTI aggressively SHARES U.S. communications policy, management and technological advancements for women and men who are well positioned to promote open, competitive ICT markets
- No-strings-attached training: No trade shows, No propaganda, No quid pro quos.
- USTTI's ratio of applications to training slots will average 10+ applications to each training slot with 60-65% of all applications received coming from Africa

USTTI ITU Partnership

- Formalized in 2002 by a Memorandum of Understanding that was signed by USTTI Chairman, Ambassador Michael Gardner and the then Director of the Telecommunication Development Bureau, Dr. Hamadoun Toure

USTTI ITU Partnership

- Through the MoU the USTTI agreed to provide priority acceptance for ITU nominated applicants and the ITU agreed to cover the officials living costs during their participation in USTTI's tuition-free training
- This partnership has resulted in 189 officials from 53 countries being trained

USTTI Take-Away

Provides tuition-free training for the women and men who design, regulate and oversee the communications infrastructures of the developing world in the areas of spectrum management, wireless technologies, cybersecurity, mobile broadband, emergency communications, Internet, telehealth, regulatory policy, rural connectivity, Internet governance and satellite applications

Graduates become empowered and informed decision makers within their developing country as well as leaders at ITU fora where many heads of delegation are USTTI Alumni

Vibrant USTTI – ITU Partnership that has empowered 189 officials from 53 countries since 2002
