

Daniella Esi Darlington

Co-founder, Copianto AI and ITU Secretary-General's Youth Advisory Board Member

Daniella is a well versed Ghanaian tech entrepreneur and expert in responsible AI, dedicated to fostering inclusive digital transformation. As a leading tech advisor, she empowers organizations to harness advanced technologies while implementing ethical AI practices and ensuring adherence to regulatory standards.

Daniella is a member of the ITU Secretary-General's Youth Advisory Board, where she champions youth engagement in shaping the future of technology. Her commitment to responsible technology development is further exemplified through her affiliation with All Tech is Human.

As the co-founder of Copianto AI, Daniella combines her legal expertise—holding a Bachelor of Laws (LLB) from the University of Ghana—with her passion for innovation. Her efforts in addressing critical global challenges have earned her recognition through prestigious fellowships such as the Sigma Squared Society, and she was recently named one of the #10FacesChangingAfrica by StArfrica - Startup Germany-Africa.