In Kenya, post offices already provide Internet access at 0 fee.

My business plan would be to develop e-learning software and provide it to all tertiary institutions (universities, polytechnics, etc). They would then be able to provide online learning to many people in the rural areas who cannot afford to travel to the universities.

The business plan would also include support for the universities through obtaining necessary equipment, setting up websites, as well as arranging for services from the post office.
