

Mr. Sangwon Ko is the Executive Director of the International Cooperation Research Division at the Korea Information Society Development Institute (KISDI). He is currently a Korean Delegate and Vice Chair for the Working Party on Artificial Intelligence Governance (WPAIGO) in OECD, and also a Vice Chair for ITU-D Study Group 1.

Previously, he served as an Assistant Secretary to the President for Science at the Office of the President, a Korean Delegate and Vice Chair for the Committee on Digital Economy Policy (CDEP) and Working Party on Measurement and Analysis of the Digital Economy (WPMAD) in OECD. Additionally, he was an executive committee member of the Korean Labor Economic Association and the Korean Econometric Society.

His main research interests include human resources development, R&D, national innovation systems, and the Digital Economy. He has published on a range of topics, including issues in science and technology human resources development in Korea, structural change and employment in the manufacturing sector, the effect of government R&D direct subsidies on corporate R&D investment, green ICT policy in Korea, and the analysis of the IT labor market. Sangwon Ko received a Ph.D. in Economics from Cornell University in 1992 and a B.A. in Economics from Yonsei University in 1987.