Starting From Generation Connect Gender Champions in Global Youth Summit 2022

At the Generation Connect Global Youth Summit, the twelve Gender Champions facilitated a “youth empowering youth” skill development workshop focused on encouraging youth, to create grassroots change that advances digital inclusion and combats gender biases within STEM. Champions also contributed to Inter-Generational Dialogues, the Youth Call to Action, Learning Sessions, and Youth for Youth Debates.

Meaningful Connectivity: Women Experts and Young Experts inclusion

Involving Young People in Youth Policy Making

Three Lens Approach according to Department for International Development, United Kingdom

- Working for youth as BENEFICIARIES
- Engaging with Youth as PARTNERS
- Supporting youth as LEADERS

9 out of 10 young people is coming from Developing Countries.

Youth Advisory Panel (YAP) Issue Brief From Youth Bulge to Youth-led, UNFPA Indonesia.

While many countries are fighting over 5G Internet technology, there are also places that are still making efforts to create an equal 3G internet distribution.

Blessing, a 19-year-old high school student, might not be able to attend universities due to difficulties in economic conditions, but that shouldn't stop her from getting an equal opportunity to grow as a young person.

How a Platform and Opportunity Can Ensure The Inclusivity of Young People

Personal Key Takeaways

It also can starts from them.

Introducing SDGs to Junior High School

Through the Society of Renewable Energy Chapter Bandung Institute of Technology, I facilitated a junior high school student to introduce them to renewable energy and the Sustainable Development Goals 2030 (SDGs). They might not know about the issues yet. But it might give them new hope to grow more, to lead, and to represent more as young people.

It's not just about my generation.
Not about people that already young, but children that also will grow up as a young person.

Thank you.
