

Ms. Tyronda Brown

*Regional Director for Africa and the Middle East
Global Strategies & Negotiation Division Federal Communications Commission*

Tyronda Brown is the Regional Director for Africa and the Middle East in the Global Strategies and Negotiation Division in the Office of International Affairs at the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). In her current position, Ms. Brown is responsible for facilitating and managing the FCC's bilateral relationships with regulators in Africa and in the Middle East. She specializes in broadband deployment and adoption; universal service; emerging technologies; consumer protection; capacity building and digital skills development; and inclusive communications.

Prior to her position at the FCC, Ms. Brown worked as a Foreign Affairs Officer at the United States Department of State on issues regarding multilateral negotiations, public outreach, and communications. She also served in the United States Navy for 9 years. Ms. Brown holds a Bachelors in Communications from The University of Texas in San Antonio and a Masters in Global Governance, Politics, and Security from American University in Washington D.C.