summary

Within the Ministry of Transport and Waterworks of the Netherlands and the Radiocommunications Agency she has had different positions, such as Head of the Frequency Management and Regulatory Affairs department. In that capacity she was responsible for national and international matters in the area of allocation, planning, assignment, registration and coordination of the radio frequency spectrum and satellite orbits.

She also held the position of coordinator international affairs, where she was responsible for coordinating the positions of the Agency in the different international organisations in which it participates.

Between 1994 and 2003 she worked for the European Communications Office (ECO) of the European Conference of Postal and Telecommunications Administrations (CEPT) in Copenhagen, first as an expert and subsequently as Deputy Director. The core duties of the ECO are to provide a European centre of expertise in electronic communications. During these years she directed a large number of study projects on satellite issues, licensing and spectrum management for the European Commission.

She has been active in the work of international organisations such as ITU, CEPT and EU for more than 25 years. In her contribution to the work of these organisations she has taken an active role and has chaired a number of meetings, both in the context of the regional preparation for the WRC within the CEPT as on general spectrum management and regulatory topics. Within the ITU she has chaired groups in Study Group 1 as well as during WRC-07 and WRC-12. She was also a member of the Radio Spectrum Committee (RSC) of the European Union 2003-2017.

She has presented and published articles and papers on various subjects related to spectrum management and radio regulations. She has over the years given many presentations at seminars and conferences around the world on spectrum management and satellite regulations and participated as a panelist in many conferences.

Commitment

I will continue to take a neutral position in my work in the RRB, listening to the arguments of all parties concerned and applying the provisions of the Radio Regulations and the Rules of Procedure in an appropriate way.

As a member of the RRB I will ensure that the decisions of the RRB are consistent and predictable and that they take account of the specific aspects of each case. When it is necessary to develop Rules of Procedure, I will make my best efforts that they are clear and contribute to the application of the Radio Regulations.

I will ensure that the decisions of the RRB and the Rules of Procedures are fully in line with the Constitution, the Convention and the Radio Regulations.

In my work as member of the RRB I will make my best efforts to serve the membership of the ITU as best as I can.
