

Jean-François Fenech

CEO of Eutelsat Asia

Jean-François Fenech is CEO of Eutelsat Asia, leading the development of Eutelsat in the Asia-Pacific region, and Executive Vice President of Eutelsat's Global Mobility Services. He joined the Eutelsat Group in 2012, as CEO of Skylogic S.p.A. and General Manager of Eutelsat Broadband, Eutelsat's broadband Business Unit, bringing to the company over 25 years of international telecommunications experience. He joined the company from Antenna Hungária (part of the TDF group) where he was CEO, notably launching subscriber broadcast services across Hungary and consolidating the market for satellite-based enterprise services.

Prior to this, he steered the development of TDF's international activities and its affiliates, and was CEO of Axión, the TDF-owned Spanish transmission company. He began his career at EDF before moving to the French broadcasting authority where he specialized in radio frequency planning and coordination of international radio frequencies. Jean-François Fenech is a graduate of the ENST (École Nationale Supérieure des Télécommunications) in Paris and holds a Masters in Electrical Engineering from Texas A&M University (USA).