ChildSafeNet Programme Areas

Why children need to be protected online

Children have rights

- to be protected - offline and online

- to use the internet safely

- to information, education, privacy and recreation

- to express views on the matters, including by use of the technology

ChildSafeNet Response

Research studies: Parenting in the Digital Age; Generative AI and Its Impacts on Children; Online Intimate Partner Violence against Teens and Young People in Nepal; COVID-19 & COP; Live Streaming of Sexual Abuse/Exploitation; Online Behaviour & Risks

Developed a white paper and a situation paper on COP

Developed toolkits and handbooks - for police, lawyers, psychosocial service providers, parents; handbook on prevention of tech-facilitated child marriage

Awareness raising - online & offline (social media, mainstream media, events)

Cyber Safety training of trainers; training in schools/colleges

Advocacy with the government, ISPs, private sector, schools/colleges
