Session #	Session 5: Leaving No One Behind in the Cambodian Digital Transformation Journey
Title of presentation	Promoting Safer Internet for Children and Young People

Anil Raghuvanshi

Founder and President, ChildSafeNet

Anil Raghuvanshi is the founder and president of ChildSafeNet (www.childsafenet.org), a leading organisation in Nepal working to protect children and young people online. He is a child protection specialist and a leading expert on child online protection.

He has led several research studies on issues related to the protection of children in the digital age. He is also a member of the Global Advisory Group of the Sexual Violence Research Initiative and has been leading research studies on child online protection.

He has been promoting a safer and better internet for children. He played a key role in promoting and coordinating the Safer Internet Day campaign and curating the Stop.Think.Connect movement in Nepal.

He has developed technical and programmatic resources for advocacy, awareness, and capacity building to promote a safer and better internet for children and young people. He has worked for over thirty years in nine countries as a child protection professional with UNICEF, ILO, UN DPKO, Save the Children, ECPAT International, and Plan International. Before founding ChildSafeNet, he worked with UNICEF in Nigeria as the Child Protection in Emergencies Manager and was responsible for responding to Boko Haram-related child protection emergencies.