

Mr. Martin BUSCHER

Research & teaching assistant at Chair of Space Technology, Technische Universität Berlin
Areas of expertise: Frequency coordination, ground segment, electronics, control

Martin BUSCHER graduated in Electrical Engineering from RWTH Aachen University and in Mechanical Engineering from the University at Buffalo, State University of New York. At Technische Universität Berlin, he is a teaching assistant and works in the field of frequency coordination. He consults the German Aerospace Center (DLR) in committee work towards the next ITU world radio conference. He is the responsible supervisor of the TU Berlin ground station and mission control center.