

Dr. Zhiyong Feng

Dr. Zhiyong Feng is currently serving as professor at Beijing University of Posts and Telecommunications (BUPT) . She is the Director of the Key Laboratory of Universal Wireless Communications Ministry of Education. Her research interests include spectrum monitoring and management, cognitive radio networks, and wideband wireless communication. She is a member of the frequency expert group of the “Beidou Satellite System”. She is also an editor of international academic magazine KSII Transactions on Internet and Information Systems. She is the project leader of national “973” Project on Fundamental Theory and Key Technology in Cognitive Radio Network. Besides, she has been responsible for or involved in four “863” projects, two Major Programs of National Natural Science Foundation of China and five key state science and technology projects. She is also the responsible person from BUPT side in many international cooperation projects, such as the End-to-End Reconfiguration (E2R) European Project of FP6 and the End-to-End Efficiency (E3) European Project of FP7. She has published 120 papers. She now owns 21 patents, 4 published books and 40 standard proposals accepted by ITU、IEEE and CCSA.

