

Abstract :

Global statistics show important figures for smuggling and counterfeiting of mobile devices.

In this context, it is necessary to put in place a system to fight against these phenomena which are constantly increasing day by day and which will allow us to :

- Protect the health of citizens by blocking counterfeit phones that do not meet health and safety standards
- Fight the parallel market and provide additional resources to the state budget
- Stop the rise in theft of mobile phones

The implementation of this system requires the involvement of several stakeholders, including national authorities as well as mobile network operators.

Jamil Soyah, CERT, Tunisia