

Title: Customer privacy enhancement by using machine learning technology

Abstract

AI and machine learning is a newly emerging technology with a wide range of applications. In this talk, applying machine learning techniques on anti-spam environment in telecommunication at SK Telecom is introduced as a case study. This talk also presents the results of the spam filtering with and without machine learning, which is launched last year October, and what remains as next step.