

Title: Comparing the performance of blockchain implementations

Abstract:

When an enterprise is stepping into blockchain domain, performance and scalability is always the first priority when choosing blockchain implementation. There could be hundreds of implementations in the market. How to compare these platforms from performance perspective, based on the different requirement is not an easy task. This presentation will discuss the challenges faced in such instances, propose concepts for performance and scalability evaluation, and propose solutions to these challenges.