Hye Jin Park is formerly a senior researcher at the Electronics and Telecommunications Research Institute (ETRI), South Korea. In this capacity, she participated in various technology and policy development research projects in the field of information and communication technologies (ICT). She also actively contributed to solving economic and policy issues concerning international telecommunication services and tariffs. Ms. Park is currently a member of Korea ITU-T SG3 mirror committee and Vice-Chairman of the ITU-T SG3RG-AO. Ms. Park also served as the Vice Chairman of Working Party 1 of ITU-T SG3 and proposed numerous contributions. Her other professional affiliation includes World Wide Web Consortium (W3C), where she served as Coordinator in Korea Office. Ms. Park received Bachelor's degree in Engineering Science and Master's degree in Operations Research from the University of Auckland, New Zealand.