

Mohammad Ahmad Almomani

Head of competition and market analysis section – TRC Jordan

A senior regulatory, competition and research economist specializing in telecommunications industry, works for telecommunication regulatory commission as a head of competition and market analysis section since august 2016.

The experience of Mohammad Almomani extends to over 10 years of practical experience in the various fields of telecommunications sector . His specialty focuses on the fields Market Research, Economic Regulation and Competition analysis.

Mr. mohammad Almomani joined TRC in 2006, throughout this period he was responsible on variety of tasks such as :

- Participating in Market Review exercise (Regulatory Reform) through Public consultation Process which includes: Proposing the necessary regulatory changes and handling stakeholder comments in an efficient manner.
- Participating in setting the appropriate tariff and accounting principles for wholesale and retail services
- Participating in disputes resolution among licensees with regards to access and competition and Investigating in illegal behaviors like collusion and abuse of dominant position.
- Participating in reviewing universal service regulatory framework .
- Conduct benchmarking study about Telecommunications service prices aiming to assess prices trend; and other regulatory purposes.
- Working to review and updates competition safeguard instructions which form the procedural aspect for Ex-post and Ex-ante intervention related to defining relevant markets and SMP determination
- Follow up Telecommunications market trends like the impact of OTTs , fostering next generation network, and other issues like international mobile roaming

Mr Almomani Holds master 's degree in regulation and competition policy university of Jordan 2010. A bachelor 's degree in economics and law from Yarmouk university 2005.