Mansour AlQurashi-BIO

Mansour Alqurashi is a leader with more than 14 years of experience in the field of ICT, and held different positions of increasing scope and responsibility, which allowed him to get his arms around the digital and space sectors and understand the benefits and challenges on both the national and international level. Alqurashi proved his significant international skills to representing the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia internationally, strengthening the relationships with all stakeholders and working towards building consensus. As a result of his hard work, Alqurashi was appointed as the International affairs general manager in CITC and the Saudi Arabia councilor in the ITU Council. In addition, Alqurashi also held the position of the Chair of the United Nations Commission on Science and Technology for Development (CSTD). Alqurashi earned his bachelor's degree in electronic engineering from the De Montfort University in 2007, also received his master's degree in software engineering in 2008. In 2019, he earned an executive certificate in strategy and innovation from MIT Sloan School of Management.