

Communication has always been a human need.

We believe it is also a human right.

The International Telecommunication Union plays a crucial role in the analysis and crafting of key trends shaping the ICT industry. Information from around the globe is collected and refined for a better understanding of the industry's future, enabling the public and private sectors to develop strategies and target growth opportunities. ITU serves as an important forum for creating dialogue among government and industry players on technology, policy and economic issues – for the benefit of the global telecommunication community. www.itu.int

Helping the world communicate

