

Keston Perry

I am the founder of KUMBA Connect. My vision is to make sustainable impact both as an entrepreneur and academic researcher by helping others develop their innovative capacity. I hold a Master's degree in Innovation, Creativity & Entrepreneurship at Newcastle University, UK, and a Bachelor's degree in Communications, with post-graduate training in International Relations, from the University of the West Indies, Trinidad.

Twitter: @kestontnt
Email: kumba.consulting@gmail.com

KUMBA Connect

KUMBA Connect is a networking platform which creates job opportunities for un- and under-employed young Caribbean migrants with strong technical skills who are living in the UK. It will provide opportunities for young migrants to employ their skills and earn extra income, as well as contribute to solving technical or product development challenges for Caribbean companies lacking in-house human resource capacity. Through their interaction with private companies, the young migrants will be able to develop skills, gaining experience and eventually longer-term employment and entrepreneurial opportunities. In the long term, KUMBA will expand into other geographical markets, and will develop mobile applications to enable its users to engage more effectively. Ultimately, KUMBA Connect will bring about social change and mutual benefit to our clients and community.

What?

An internet platform giving job opportunities back home to migrant Caribbean youth.

Who?

This platform will generate opportunities for technically-skilled unemployed migrants in the UK.

Why?

KUMBA Connect provides income-generating opportunities to unemployed migrants to achieve their goals.

Goals

Within a year, I hope to change the lives of at least 25 jobless migrants through securing investment.