ByteBlower is a TCP/IP traffic generator/analyzer tool that uses off-the-shelf hardware to perform exhaustive tests on IP networks and networking equipment, either in a lab environment or in real-life networks. While many other solutions require countless expensive standalone applications for every possible situation, ByteBlower has only one. The platform-independent GUI has everything on board to test under the widely divergent conditions, configurations and scenarios. Its intuitive application is a cast-iron guarantee for an easy set-up of the most complex scenarios. So that accurate testing and monitoring results are just a few clicks away.
