

Monica Albertini is the communications and promotion officer for the Development Sector of ITU, the United Nations specialized agency for information and communication technologies. Ms Albertini has worked for the United Nations for more than 15 years in the field of communications, public relations and programme management. She has served in various duty stations, including UN peacekeeping missions. Before joining ITU in 2013, she worked as public information officer for the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Geneva; as communications, media officer and programme manager for various Departments at UN Headquarters in New York, including the Department of General Assembly and Conference Management, the Department Public Information and the Department of Peacekeeping Operations. Ms. Albertini also served as public information officer with the United Nations Mission in Eritrea and Ethiopia; and as media officer and programme manager with the United Nations Mission in Sierra Leone. She began her career with the United Nations in 1999 in the Press Service in New York where she covered the meetings of the General Assembly.

Prior to joining the United Nations, Ms. Albertini worked as a radio journalist for the Vatican.