Policy Analyst

International Multilateral Partnership Against Cyber Threats (IMPACT)

Amelia Gowa is a Policy Analyst and officer-in-charge for Child Online Protection with the International Multilateral Partnership Against Cyber Threats (IMPACT), based in Cyberjaya, Malaysia. Her roles include conducting and disseminating policy-oriented research on current issues related to cybercrime, cybersecurity and child online protection, providing advisory services on ICT and cybersecurity policy matters, and supporting collaboration on developmental projects with other international organisations to partner countries of the ITU-IMPACT alliance.

Prior to joining IMPACT, she interned with the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) on cybersecurity and child online protection. With a background in Telecommunications Engineering and current pursuit of a concentration in Information Systems, she is keen to contribute to policy, technology and capacity building with the aim of advocating for use of ICTs for positive use and development. She is also passionate about the empowerment of fellow girls and women towards active participation in the world of technology.

Amelia also volunteers with the World Assembly of Youth, an organization dedicated to advancing the rights of youth and their involvement in achieving the Millennium Development Goals, and is a member of the Internet Society- Malaysia Chapter.
